

There and It

There and it are both empty subjects in an English sentence as they don't refer to a specific person or thing.

There	It
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Part of the expression "there is" or "there are" (exists) in any tense or with a modal verb There is a person in the room Structure verb to be + noun/noun phrase There are five people in this room Structure verb to seem/ happen/ tend + to + be + noun There seems to be a delay. Place There's my phone! I've been looking for it all day. Quantity or quantifier There were so many people in the office 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Be + adjective + to + infinitive It is good to be home Weather It is sunny, it is dark outside Times, dates and days, period of time It is Monday, it is 11am, it is 24th March Distances It's 5km to my school Person or object pronoun It's me! It's my teacher. Impersonal passive It's said that children learn languages better than adults Cleft sentences It was me who took your phone Structure verb to appear/ look like/ There seems to be a delay.

There's no use + gerund There's no need to + infinitive There's no point in + gerund There's no reason to + infinitive There's no hope of + gerund There's no denying that There's no place like There's no way of + gerund There's no question of + gerund	It's (not) worth + gerund It's no good + gerund It's a waste of time + gerund It's no wonder that It's no fun + gerund It's no big deal to + infinitive It's no joke + gerund It's no laughing matter + gerund
--	--